

No. ♦ Either container is not required by law. ♦ However, the cemetery may choose to require a cement liner to prevent the soil covering the casket from settling too much. ♦ Check with the cemetery directly.

A great resource for things to look for while funeral buying can be found on this [**article**](http://www.funerals.org/frequently-asked-questions/funeral-arrangements/67-understanding-the-tricks-of-the-funeral-trade-self-defense-for-consumers "Funeral Buying Self Defense for Consumers") from our national affiliate.